

Social and Behavioral Sciences

WE KNOW WHAT WE ARE, BUT KNOW NOT WHAT WE MAY BE.
GET TO KNOW YOUR FUTURE.

Social and Behavioral Sciences offer exciting opportunities to study in such disciplines as psychology, sociology, and anthropology. Students have the opportunity to explore the diversity of human behavior through the scientific study of culture, society, and relationships. Enroll in courses that explore the human psyche such as Human Sexuality, Psychology and Culture, Abnormal Psychology, Psychology of Religion and Research Methods. Discover how societies shape attitude and behaviors by taking courses like Racial and Ethnic Minorities, Gender and Society, and Social Problems. Examine the social evolution, inter-relations and representations of cultures in courses such as Buried Cities and Lost Tribes: New World; Magic, Witchcraft and Healing: An Introduction to Comparative Religion; and Anthropology Goes to the Movies.
